Join us for a practical overview of how new dyslipidemia guidelines are translated into a standardized quality measure to assess clinician performance in lipid monitoring and management.
Learn how guideline recommendations are converted into measurable elements, the structure of the new quality measure, and how performance data can identify care gaps and drive improvement.
The session also covers core measure components—denominator, numerator, exclusions, and exceptions—and highlights alignment with value-based care initiatives and upcoming CMS Quality Payment Program (QPP) reporting expectations.
This webinar is open to all, but ideal for clinicians, quality leaders, population health teams and practice administrators seeking to strengthen their cardiovascular risk management while preparing for evolving value-based care expectations
